ANNOTATED FILM LIST

#44
A DESK FOR BILLIE

A true story of the child of a migrant family and how the schools and good teachers influenced her. A classic in the documentary world.

#59
BIRTH OF A UNION

A union is formed for agricultural workers in California. The film shows the employer and employee viewpoints during this critical time.

BLACK AMERICA SERIES

#48-49
BLACK HISTORY: LOST, STOLEN, OR STRAYED

Actor Bill Cosby, narrator of this film shows that black people have made a considerable contribution to the development and wealth of the United States. For example, the sugar refining industry was revolutionized by the invention of a black man; the shoe manufacturing industry uses an invention originated by a Negro; the first open-heart surgery was done by a black doctor; black explorers, cowmen, and soldiers helped to tame our frontiers.

#45
THE BLACK SOLDIER

The Black Soldier surveys the history of the black American's participation in the armed forces of the United States, from the Revolutionary War to the war in Vietnam. Bill Cosby narrates, using paintings, drawings, cartoons, and etchings of famous battles as well as films of wars in this century. This film includes some rare silent footage of World War I. The Black Soldier puts into proper perspective the roles played by many black Americans in the defense of their country.

#52-53
BLACK WORLD

In Part I, Mike Wallace discusses such topics as the difference in feelings about Africa between the American Negro and the African Negro; the American culture as it was impressed upon the Negro slave; Stokely Carmichael; the information about America that black Africans have; what African schools are teaching about the Negro in America; the restiveness among college students in this country and in Africa; women, and interracial marriages and how they are viewed in Africa.

In Part II, discussion centers on religion, the black African's view of Vietnam, the problems of racism in Africa, democracy and other forms of Government, and anti-Americanism.

BODY AND SOUL - PART I: BODY

Most people in the United States date the breakthrough of the black man into the field of professional sports from the date of the acceptance of Jackie Robinson in professional baseball. This was the first real beginning, and it would seem that many more Negroes have "made the grade" in sports in this country.

#47

BODY AND SOUL - PART II: SOUL

Ray Charles, successful and talented black musician, recalls details of his early life and professional career. In so doing, he provides an insight into the attitudes and experiences of many black performers. He also describes the relationship between the unhappy state of economically deprived black Americans and the development of Negro music -- spirituals and revival music, jazz, and the blues.

#50-51

THE HERITAGE OF SLAVERY

The first slaves arrived in the South in 1619. By 1860, there were four million black men, women, ~~and~~ children in the United States --- most of them the private property of white Americans. The nature of slavery and its effects on both blacks and whites of the period are illustrated with references to diaries and other documents, as well as through recollections of those who lived in the South during the post-Civil War period. Contrasts between black and white attitudes about the institution of slavery are presented in interviews with representatives of both the old "southern aristocracy" and the blacks they employed.

#39-40

IN SEARCH OF A PAST

Of growing importance to black Americans in their search for an identity is a knowledge of the land of their racial origin, Africa. CBS NEWS selected three young black students to visit Africa to gain insight into their cultural heritage and to compare life in America with life in Africa. For one month, these black American students lived among the people of Ghana, traveled through the land and met with groups of Ghanaian students to discuss problems of mutual concern similarities, as well as some very disturbing cultural differences, were found to exist.

The students conclude that their heritage is, after all, in the country that their forebears helped to build and defend. One student outlines their future action in his observation that they will not hide in Africa because of white racism in America, but that they will "get together and change it."

#54-55

PORTRAIT IN BLACK AND WHITE

The results of a poll conducted by CBS NEWS form the basis of this film. The poll sought the answers to three basic questions: How much racism is there among white Americans? Are the black extremists the people to whom the majority of blacks look for leadership? How do the races feel about each other? The poll indicates that white racism is characteristic of only a minority of whites, and that it is decreasing, particularly among younger people.

Part I of the film deals with the questions about white racism and black extremism. Part II treats the third question and reviews the significance of the poll.

BROWARD COUNTY ----MIGRANT TEACHERS.

#33

BY THEIR FRUITS

This film depicts the migrants' life and educational processes and was produced by the Migrant Education Center at Florida Atlantic University.

#43

CHRISTMAS IN APPALACHIA

This penetrating CBS documentary program is a reminder of the stark poverty and hopelessness of one million of our fellow Americans who live in Appalachia. The viewer comes face to face with people for whom Christmas is a barren experience in a country of affluence.

#19-21

PROGRAM I CULTURAL TRANSFORMATION
PROGRAM II ANTHROPOLOGY
PROGRAM III CULTURAL TRANSFORMATION

#28
CENTERS OF DISCOVERY REPORT

A report of the Centers of Discovery sequences and their beginnings.

#41
THE DROPOUT

This film demonstrates the personal tragedy and economic waste, the frustrations and failures of the millions of dropouts, who, without adequate education, are pouring into the labor market and spend their lives floundering from one low-level job to another-a burden to themselves and to society. The film explores the causes of dropouts and gives a detailed blueprint for community activities to prevent school dropouts.

#27
EDUCATION SCIENCE 425
LECTURE I

#34
FEARS OF CHILDREN

The film deals with a 5-year-old, Paul, and his parents who are trying to cope with a transitional period of normal growth without really understanding the implications of changes in behavior. It points out that Paul fears are common to children of his age, and may be accentuated when parents become unduly protective or oversevere.

#23
HEADSTART WORKSHOP

This film presents the migrants and teachers involved in a workshop. Many aspects of the school program are looked into, with an emphasis on art.

#37-38
INCIDENT ON WILSON STREET

A special cultural program has an immediate and positive impact on fifth-grade boys and girls from a low socio-economic area of Brooklyn, New York. The film captures the teacher's sympathetic understanding and affection for the children, and offers many insights into the concerns of shy, aggressive, and disadvantaged children.

#16
INTERVIEW WITH MIGRANT WOMEN

Chris Scott -- interviews several migrant women and discusses their problems.

#58
KEEP IT COOL

Candid camera treatment of the YMCA detached worker program in Chicago. YMCA field workers live and work with juvenile gangs in an effort to prevent delinquency and steer the boys toward constructive goals. A CBS 20th Century Production: Walter Cronkite narrates.

#30-31
MARKED FOR FAILURE

Focuses on the problems facing both educators and children in America's slum schools. Filmed in New York's Harlem section, this film illuminates the reasons why these children, mostly Negro are kept out of the cultural, and ultimately, the economic mainstream of society. Young children in slum areas are forced to be totally self-reliant and they lose the necessary relationship with their parents - which is important to normal development. In the world of slums, a child is not allowed to act like a child. He is a vital need of enriching experience, understanding, and a feeling of self-respect. These children need help and education may be the only answer. Schools and educators must put meaning into the lives of those who have been MARKED FOR FAILURE and open doorways to the future.

#17
MIGRANT SKITS

Skits are presented to show various aspects of migrant life; language, education, living conditions, and work.

#35

THE NEGLECTED

This film illustrates the problems of rehabilitating the lowest level of economic casualties in the American scene. Shows that skilled techniques, personal care and consideration on the part of the professional staff can bring effective results with the "hard core" families in our society. The film shows that immoral, immature, abusive, mentally retarded, and emotionally unstable human beings can be helped to achieve acceptable standards of parenthood. Portrays the growing insight and skill of the case worker as she learns to understand and accept the parents of children whom the agency has been called upon to help.

#32

THE NEWCOMERS

A rural family arrives in the city to start a new life and is faced with a bewildering, defeating array of problems. Here is how church community action can and does help. Eight steps for aiding newcomers are suggested in the discussion guide which accompanies the film. Winner of the 1965 "Golden Eagle" Award.

#57

POVERTY

One of the first documentaries made on poverty in a big city. Produced by Mr. Edward Foster, this film gives viewers a piercing look at Cincinnati's slums, her people, and their desire for solutions.

#56

POVERTY IN RURAL AMERICA

A documentary presentation of people telling their own stories of their problems, their privations, their hopes. The film also shows what rural people are accomplishing with new kinds of government help.
